Date: 21/8/2017

To the Editor:

Paper Title: Micro-Feedback Training: Learning The Art Of Effective Feedback

Authors: Dr Najma Baseer, Dr Usman Mahboob, Dr James Degnan

Dear Sir,

This paper discusses an innovative approach to train the faculty for providing effective feedback. All the authors have contributed significantly to the concept, design, and structure of the paper, and are in agreement with the content of the manuscript. This manuscript is not being considered for potential publication elsewhere. In addition, this work has not been published previously.

This is a concept paper that is based on the evidences from the literature. Further, this paper does not include any human or animal experiment and thus does not require ethics approval. There was no funding for this paper and the authors report no conflict of interest.

Yours Sincerely,

Najma Baseer

Dr Najma Baseer MBBS, PhD
Assistant Professor in Anatomy
Institute of Basic Medical Sciences (IBMS)
Khyber Medical University
Peshawar, Khyber Pakhtunkhwa
Pakistan
Email: najmabaseer84@gmail.com

Dr Usman Mahboob MBBS, MPH, FHEA (UK), DHPE (Glasgow)
Assistant Professor in Medical Education
Institute of Health Professions Education & Research
Khyber Medical University
Peshawar, PAKISTAN.
Office: 0092 91 921 9612
Mobile: 0092 333 913 7451
Email: usman.mahboob@kmu.edu.pk
(Corresponding Author)

James Degnan

Dr James Degnan PhD
Adjunct Assistant Professor
Senior Director (r) for Measurement and Institutional Research
Temple University, Philadelphia, USA
Contact number: US 215 204-4643 (Temple University)
US 215 836-2839 (home)
Email: degnan@temple.edu